WARSAW SURRENDERS AFTER SIEGE OF 21 DAYS; CITY REDUCED TO A SHAMBLES; CASUALTIES ARE BEYOND COMPUTATION

Fleets of 200 German Warplanes Subject City To Constant Bombardment—Most of Public Buildings in City Are Aflame, Reports State

(By International News Service)

BERLIN, Sept. 27.—After 21 days of siege, Warsaw has surrendered, it was officially announced in Berlin this afternoon.

The military commandant of Warsaw, the Berlin announcement said, finally offered to capitulate to end the bombardment of the former Polish capital.

General Von Blaskowitz, commander of the German occupational troops in central Poland, was authorized by the high command to negotiate the surrender.

The final capitulation of Warsaw came as no surprise. It was announced in Berlin yesterday that the army's patience had become exhausted by the continued civilian resistance of the city. The last broadcast from the Warsaw radio announcer told how "the last 24-hours have been far more terrible than any we have yet endured."

Fleets of 200 German warplanes subjected the city to constant bombardment, the announcer said, setting most of the public buildings in the city aflame.

The city, he revealed, was reduced to a virtual shambles. Casualties, humans and animals, were rendered beyond computation.

Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop of Germany, went to Moscow today for conversation which may be vital to the fate of Baltic and Balkan states.

The Foreign Minister of Estonia due back in Moscow, and the Foreign Minister of Turkey loomed large in discussions which it was predicted might result in a Russo-German deal in the Balkans. Other developments:

What amounted to a veritable "Congress of Moscow" was in session in the Soviet capital today for what may prove to be an international deal of greater eventual importance than the Russo-German division of Poland.

While fighting lagged on the western front, diplomacy in Moscow sped ahead at a dizzy pace. Results were certain to be quick, but their nature and portent proved an alarming mystery to Western Europe.

Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop of Germany was due in Moscow today, flying from Berlin in Chance.

World Day for Animals To Be Observed in Schools

World Day for Animals, internationally celebrated for some years, on October fourth, will be observed in assemblies next week, by Boy Scouts, with kind co-operation of principals and teachers.

Bucks County Humane Club has just announced for all grades in the schools above the third, a True Animal Story Contest, for October, November and December.

Pupils are asked to send in true animal stories, by the fifteenth of October, November and December, and it is hoped to have some of these true animal stories appear in the county papers in the locality from which such stories are received, and a final selection of stories will be made at end of contest and three prizes given. First, $3; second, $2; and third prize, $1.

It is also announced that all girls and boys who subscribe to the Humane Pledge, "I Will Try To Be Kind To Every Living Creature and To Protect It From Cruel Treatment" will be members of this organization, the Junior part of which is to be known as the "Fur and Feather Club." There are no dues in this Humane Club, but members usually like to wear the club pin, which costs one cent each.

Any interested teachers who have not yet received material from the Bucks County Humane Club, may upon request to Box 57, Wycombe, receive leaflets on the care of pets... dogs, cats, rabbits, goldfish, etc., or humane plays, suitable for ages from primary to high school. Further data also on the True Animal Story Contest may be had from same address. All humane material is free, and with each Kindness Club in a school comes a year's subscription to "Our Dumb Animals" magazine, published at Boston.

First Degree Murder Verdict

Philadelphia, Sept. 27.—For the second time within a week, a jury today doled a "black widow" of the notorious Philadelphia murder for insurance ring to death in the electric chair.

Given the case last night, the jury of six men and six women returned a verdict of first degree murder, making the death sentence mandatory against Mrs. Grace Giovannetti, 45. She arranged the arsenic poisoning of her first husband, Pietro Piorilli, who died on April 21, 1935, so she could split his insurance with arch-conspirators of the bizarre ring.

Mrs. Giovannetti was placed on trial Monday with the Commonwealth contending she conspired with Rose Carina, the so-called "kiss of death woman," now awaiting trial, and Herman Petrillo, already convicted with the death penalty, to kill Piorilli for the insurance the wife held on his life. Before fainting on the stand, Mrs. Giovannetti claimed she was innocent and blamed Mrs. Josephine Sadita, now a fugitive. Thus far, prosecution of members of the conspiracy gang held responsible for upwards of 100 insurance murders, has brought either confession of guilt or convictions against six plotters, including three "black widows."

Emedio Mucelli, pictured by the Commonwealth as the cold-blooded instigator of the murder of Giuseppe Di Martino, is awaiting his fate in the hands of the jury, which began deliberating last evening. Mucelli was placed on trial a week ago. He too denied any guilt and testified in his own defense, intimating that Mrs. Carina Favato, who has confessed three murders, fed Di Martino the arsenic found in his body.

Brakeman Killed in Crash

Parkesburg, Pa., Sept. 27.—J. E. Bair, of Harrisburg, a brakeman, was killed and Isaac N. Conklin, of Enola, an engine man, was injured seriously today in a freight train wreck on the low grade freight tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad between Parkesburg and Lenoer. Six cars were derailed; over-head electric wiring was ripped down and wreckage was strewn over both the east and westbound tracks. Bair's body lay beneath the damaged engine for four hours before members of the wrecking crew were able to extricate it shortly after eight o'clock. The injured engine man was taken to Coatesville Hospital, where doctors said he would recover. The derailment occurred on the Trenton cut-off.

One eastbound freight of 57 cars had stopped to await a signal to proceed onto the main line of the railroad when the second eastbound train, composed of 65 freight cars ran into its rear.

MORRISVILLE PROJECT HAS BEEN APPROVED

WPA Will Assist in Financing Water Main Extension Costing $25,000

WORK TO START SOON

MORRISVILLE, Sept. 27.—WPA has allocated $17,047 in Federal funds, while the Borough will spend $7,916 for the laying of six-inch water mains in the upper section of the Borough and in Lower Makefield Township. The work, it is expected, will get under way within two weeks.

The project includes the laying of fire hydrant valves, fittings, etc. Borough Engineer Lee states that 45 laborers will be used, one timekeeper, one common labor foreman and one general foreman. The work should be completed in about six months. WPA will supply labor, with Morrisville furnishing material and equipment.

These water mains will supply the new houses and those being built in this section, in the vicinity of West Trenton avenue. The project has resulted from a request of builders and home owners in the newly-constructed area. Lee will supervise the job, Morrisville's fifth water main project to be approved by the WPA.

The project includes the laying of 156 feet of six-inch main on Hamilton Boulevard, from the end of existing line to East Birch Drive; East Birch Drive, from Hamilton Boulevard to Jefferson avenue, 542 feet; Jefferson avenue, from end of existing line, near East Birch Drive, to West Franklin street, 300 feet; West Franklin street, from Jefferson avenue to North Lafayette avenue, 360 feet, all in Morrisville Borough.

In Lower Makefield township, the mains will be laid on Elm avenue, from North Pennsylvania avenue to Maplewood Lane, 1784 feet; Wood street, between Aborea avenue and West Ferry Road, 220 feet; Glenwood Road, from North Pennsylvania avenue northeast, 749 feet.

Here and There in Bucks County Towns

Michael Kish was unanimously elected commander of Willet C. Sanford Post, No. 433, American Legion, of Morrisville, succeeding Harry M. Lair.

William Comisky was re-elected as chaplain; Leon Smith, senior vice-commander; Robert Wemmer, junior vice-commander; Marcus Ketcham, adjutant; Cheston Hutchinson, finance officer; William White, sergeant-at-arms, and George Kelly, Harry M. Lair, Walter Wardell, Herbert LaRue and Caleb Cope, members of the executive committee.

Plans were made for installation of officers of the Bristol, Yardley, New Hope and Morrisville posts at the Legion Home, Morrisville, on October 5th. Jacob Schmidt, of Bristol, new district commander, will have charge. Refreshments will be served and there will be entertainment under direction of the Bristol group. Frank Matthews, of Palmyra, past deputy commander of New Jersey, will speak, as will Past Department Commander Lester Block, of Trenton. Matthews is now a member of the American Legion national executive committee.

The Morrisville Red Cross requested the post to sponsor a drive for canned goods to be used in Morrisville. William H. Howell was named chairman of a committee to plan for a house-to-house canvass. He will be assisted by Michael Kish, Manoah R. Retter, John Gear and Russell Willoughby.

The post voted to present team pictures to team members who captured the Bucks County Junior Baseball League championship.

The Makefield Mothers' Club held its annual flower show and reception to the teachers, directors, members and their families a few nights ago at Woodside.

Mrs. George Robbins was in charge of the exhibit, as she is co-chairman with Mrs. Albert Rowe of conservation and gardens in the Makefield Mothers' Club.

The judges were Floyd Platt and Rachel Carver, Morrisville, and Helen Leedom, Yardley.

The following received ribbons in reward:

Child's birthday party, Mrs. Anna L. Roberts.

Centerpiece for dining room, Mrs. Rebecca DeCou.

Dining room bouquet, first, Mrs. George Robbins; second, Mrs. Eugene Stapler.

Unique bouquet in unique container, first, Mrs. Rebecca DeCou; second, Mrs. Willard W. Wright; third, Mrs. Mary Yardley.

Bouquet, first, Mrs. Harry Hoffman; second, Mrs. Rebecca DeCou; third, Mrs. Eugene Stapler.

Wild flower and berries, first, Mrs. Rebecca DeCou; second, Mrs. Joseph Kadel.

Most of the directors, all the teachers, and the nurse and bus drivers enjoyed the games of cards before ice cream and cake were served.

TULLYTOWN RESIDENT HAS OLD NEWSPAPER

John Burton Possesses Copy of "Bucks County Patriot," Issued 113 Years Ago

HAD LOTTERY NUMBERS

A copy of a paper published in Bucks County 113 years ago and now owned by John Burton, Tullytown, has been presented for our view. The copy is that of December 18, 1826, of the "Bucks County Patriot," published at Doylestown.

On the first of the four pages is an advertisement of William Burton, a dry goods merchant of Philadelphia, who later became a doctor of medicine in the Quaker City. He later retired to his Penn Manor plantation, Turkey Hill, and died there prior to the Civil War. Dr. Burton was a first cousin of the late Anthony Burton, Tullytown, grandfather of the owner of the newspaper in question.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

"Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc."

Needed Steps Neglected

Washington, Sept. 26.

THESE days, in Washington, where a "limited emergency" has been proclaimed and the emphasis is laid upon the necessity of "strengthening our national defenses," there is an immense amount of confused activity about relatively unimportant matters and extraordinary neglect to take obviously needed steps.

THERE is much unnecessary posturing and staged stuff. There is the noble-White House attitude of adorning politics without doing anything of the kind. There are calls by the President for non-partisanship in others, without himself being willing to give the one simple and convincing proof that his own nonpartisanship is not phony—to wit, a flat assurance to the American people that he is not seeking a third term and under no circumstances will run again.

THAT, it is generally agreed, would end the efforts of his intimates to use the war as an instrument to keep him in the White House. Also, it would enhance the chances for success of his neutrality program and of achieving "national unity." But, there are other things the President could do to prepare the country to meet any strain that may come, besides removing from the minds of the people all suspicion that he hopes the European war will make his renomination possible. Perhaps the most obvious of these is to end the almost intolerable situation that has existed in the

ARMISTICE DAY PLANS ARE NOW PROGRESSING

Two Important Meetings Are Scheduled for Tomorrow Night

URGE ALL TO ATTEND

Two important committee meetings for Bristol's mammoth Armistice Day Americanism celebration are scheduled for tomorrow evening, according to H. Wesley Spencer, general committee chairman.

The first is a meeting of the general committee and will be held in the Legion Home on Radcliffe street at eight p. m. Every one of the 11 sub-committee chairmen are expected to present detailed reports for the celebration.

The second meeting is scheduled for 8.30 p. m. at the Knights of Columbus Home on Radcliffe street, when the finance committee, headed by Dr. J. Fred Wagner, will convene. At this meeting zone committees for solicitation of funds will be named.

Active solicitation for the $2000 needed to put over the program will get under way on Saturday, October 7th.

The affair, which is expected to draw upwards of 20,000 visitors to Bristol on November 11th, is being sponsored by the Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, American Legion, when this post will be host officially to posts of the 9th District, comprising Bucks and Montgomery counties.

The pageant and celebration will not be limited, however, to just the 9th District. Invitations have been sent out to prominent posts in many sections of Penna. and New Jersey. Non-Legion organizations, bands, and fire companies are also expected to participate in the parade and to compete in their respective divisions for the $1,500 in prizes that will be awarded.

Besides these groups every fraternal, patriotic, and service organization in Bristol is expected to participate. Representatives from 28 of these organizations have already indicated a desire to participate.

"It will be an Americanism Day," according to Mr. Spencer. "The theme of the American Legion this year throughout the country is 'Americanism,' and Bristol is going to see and participate in this program by a physical display of numbers united in one parade to foster and perpetuate a one hundred per cent Americanism."

NEGRO KILLED BY OFFICER AS TWO BATTLE IN AUTO

Robbery Suspect Shot Dead by State Trooper at Doylestown

OFFICER WAS ATTACKED

Prisoner Lunged At Trooper As He Drove Car Along Road

A colored man was shot and killed last evening by an officer of the Pennsylvania Motor Police following an alleged attack upon the officer as the prisoner rode in the officer's car, enroute to the Doylestown barracks. The man, Philip A. Kemp, 32, 1838 N. VanPelt street, Philadelphia, died enroute to the Abington Hospital. He was shot twice, both bullets entering the chest.

Officer Roller C. Beckhart has been released by Bucks County Detective Anthony Russo on his own recognition.

State Police at the Doylestown barracks received a call at about 7.30 last evening that the residence of Mrs. John Lee, near Neshaminy, had been robbed. Officers on patrol were notified of the robbery and Beckhart met Kemp walking along the highway. Kemp was stopped by the officer and questioned and then ordered into the car to be taken to the barracks.

As the trooper proceeded to drive along the road he states that Kemp lunged at him, as the car ran wildly over the highway. The officer exhibits a bruised nose, three welts on the spine, two on the right shoulder, three scratches on the left forearm and bleeding of the nose.

Kemp was a former houseman in the employ of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Lee, of Neshaminy, near Doylestown. Shortly after dinner last night Mrs. Lee discovered him under a bed on the second floor. Later she found that $115 in cash was missing from her purse.

Frightened by the unexpected appearance of his former mistress, Kemp jumped from the window, slid down a post on the front porch and disappeared.

The Lees notified Doylestown motor police barracks, and a detail of men was sent on the case in search of Kemp. In the meantime Beckhart, according to custom, made his usual call to headquarters as he patrolled. He also was informed of the robbery, and ordered to make a search. As he traversed County Line Road, below Neshaminy, Beckhart overtook Kemp, and ordered him into the car. As the officer shifted gears, he states the colored man grabbed the gun from Beckhart's holster, and pressed it against his side. The two travelled thus for a distance, the officer reporting that he prayed as he travelled, then suddenly stopped to try to wrest the gun from his companion. A scuffle ensued, three shots being fired, and Kemp being shot twice.

The other detail of officers met them shortly afterwards, and all proceeded to Abington Hospital, where Kemp was pronounced dead on arrival. An autopsy was performed, the investigating coroner being Winslow P. Rushong, Montgomery County.

District Attorney Blester and Bucks County Detective Anthony Russo took charge of the investigation and Detective Russo found the pocketbook of Mrs. Lee in the officer's car. The purse contained $115 and a gold compact. Kemp's hat was also found in the car.

After checking fingerprints, Penna. Motor Police, announced Kemp was not the man sought as the slayer of Mrs. Clara Buchanan, who was murdered in her home near Norristown Monday.

BUSINESS SPEAKS

Two powerful American business groups, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and the National Association of Manufacturers, formally have stated their wish to keep this country out of war.

"We business men, as all others, are agast at the prospect of slaughter and misery abroad," says the Chamber of Commerce through President W. Gibson Carey, Jr. "We wish no profit advantage through the wrecking of great cultural and spiritual values which have been built painfully and slowly through generations of thought and effort. We want peace in the world."

The N. A. M. declares that "American industry hates war" and that "industry opposes profiteering—the utilization of war psychology to boost prices for the purpose of making excessive profits." President Howard Conoley also warns against emotionalism which "can betray us into war."

Both organizations are on record not only for American neutrality but also for emphasis on solution of domestic problems. While the Chamber asserts that "we must solve our domestic problem," the N. A. M. states that "Europe's problems do affect us, but our domestic problems still must come first." Both organizations are on record against profiteering.

There is no reason to brand these avowals as sanctimonious simply because they come from organizations which subsist on part of the profit of trade and industry. If the statements are as sincere as they appear, they deserve the appreciation of the American consumer.

Effectiveness of the Chamber and N. A. M. policies in these crucial times will be measured in the ability of the organizations' leaders to infiltrate the memberships with the neutrality, non-profitting doctrines. Big business and little business have much to say on the question of whether America shall sacrifice a multitude of lives in the European war, to say nothing of the question of whether the public shall be financially mulcted because of infamous business practices.

THOSE AMAZING ROOSEVELTS

Kermit Roosevelt, 49-year-old son of the late President T. R., has added another chapter to the Roosevelt tradition of never backing away from a good fight. Echoes of his famed father's onslaughts at San Juan Hill are heard in the report from London that Kermit plans to serve the Allies in the war against Germany.

He intends to become a British citizen by special order because as an American citizen he could not legally accept a position with the British government in wartime. Thus Kermit can become an official in the British ministry of shipping.

The explorer, engineer, banker and writer already owns the British military cross, awarded for his service as a captain in his majesty's army in Mesopotamia after he had declared war. When American troops reached Europe, Kermit transferred to their forces.

Strange is the spectacle of an offspring of T. R. relinquishing his United States citizenship. Kermit must feel that the cause is all-consuming. Time does not become the Roosevelt irrepressible.

"KNIGHT ERRANT"

by Jack McDonald

SYNOPSIS

Heather Mills' world tumbled about her when her father's thoroughbred, "Coronado," breaks his back while running in the Santa Anita Handicap, and Dan Mills, the veteran sportsman, succumbs the following day, ostensibly from pneumonia, but really from a broken heart. Charley Bassitt, a shady gambler, had taken Coronado to the receiving barn the day of that race. Bassitt had backed the winner. Therefore, gossip was rife regarding Coronado's "accidental" death. Two who had waged all on Coronado and lost were "Slim" (Andrew Branson) Maynard, whose father once owned a string of thoroughbreds, and his friend, "Snapper" Elliott, a typical tout. Slim traveled from track to track, sometimes in the money but more often not. People wondered at the friendship between the cultured Slim and the uncouth Snapper. Heather goes back to her father's Carmel Valley farm where a colt, sired by Coronado, is born. As Heather looked at the ungainly little creature, she visioned great races and a reincarnated Coronado. She named the colt "Knight Errant." In the meantime, Slim and Snapper were doing fairly well at Tanforan. One day, they go to court to hear the case of Sol Berg, a tailor against "Foots" O'Day for non-payment of a bill. "Foots" owns two no-good platters, "Susie" and "Cold Cream," which he had turned over to Berg in lieu of cash, but contrived to get back again.

CHAPTER VII

"Which do you want, your money back or the horses?" asked Judge Foley.

"The money, for my suit and overcoat!" Mr. Sol Berg said. "Those horses cost too much and never win a race."

Turning to "Foots" O'Day, the judge asked if he had the money to pay his tailor bill. Dejectedly the latter said "No."

During the six years they had "knocked around" together, Snapper had been after Slim to buy a stable. Owning one, he thought, would identify him as a horseman, and thus lend more tone of authority when he recommended certain "good things" to his clientele.

"Buy 'em, Slim!" Snapper whispered. "You can get 'em cheap." Slim stood up. He was grinning. "Your Honor, I'll buy the horses," he offered.

And his offer was approved by Tailor Berg, "Foots" O'Day, His Honor and Snapper. Slim peeled off five century notes—$300 for the tailor and $200 for "Foots"—and walked out of the courtroom holding the bill of sale for two unknown entities—to wit, Susie and Cold Cream, platters, plugs, etc., etc.

"Let's hustle out to Tanforan and look 'em over," Snapper said.

Half an hour later the grin on Slim's lean face was wiped away.

"Take a gander at this one," he groaned, pointing at the skinny little mare known as Susie. "You can hang your hat on her flanks."

And Snapper was thinking of "all the hay Susie is going to lap up" before eating her racing legs back into condition. Cold Cream, they discovered, was a 5-year-old maiden which had arrived in the show hole (third place and money) once in her life, largely due to a duke.

"Where'd you get those Mexican antaters, in a five-n-10 bargain basement?" scoffed Charlie Bassitt as Slim and Snapper led them by on a rope to the new Versatile Stable.

"Wait until you see 'em run," Slim countered bravely.

"What makes you think they can run?"

The dimple in Slim's cheek deepened.

"Premonition!"

"Premonition—a word horsemen live by."

Premonition it was that drew Heather from her bed late one night this June and sent her to Knight Errant's stable, near the farmhouse. The salt wind whipping around Point Lobos stung through the thin silk of her pajamas, and she pulled back the sliding door.

From the cold paddled stall came the thump of small hooves thrashing in agony.

Colic!

Heather had heard old Dan use the word, in the tone another man might speak of death. It sent her calling into the outer darkness beyond the stable for Artichokes, to take her place beside the frail little colt lying with bloated body and thin legs stuck out stiffly. Madly, with a polo coat flung over her pa-jeamas, she drove through the darkness of the Carmel Valley road.

She found old Doctor Boley and drove him back to the farm.

"Knight Errant is dying. You must save him. He's Knight Errant, Coronado's colt..."

Later the old veterinarian who had known her father said, "You saved him, Heather. Speed—in these cases—means more than skill."

More than ever after this grueling night the rangy colt was dear to Heather Mills.

Knight Errant was a yearling now, and the knobs of his legs had smoothed into the general black slimmness that was becoming his chief characteristic, and the great hammer-like head was daily growing finer and more beautiful.

"I'm going to send Knight Errant to the Kentucky Derby next spring," Heather informed Artichokes.

"Can't do that." Artichokes was annoyed at the girl's utter ignorance in turf matters.

Heather was piqued. Her blue eyes widened.

"Why not?"

"Because only three year olds are eligible for the Kentucky Derby."

Heather tossed her honey colored head.

"I'm going to take Knight Errant to Santa Anita in January, anyway, and race him," thought Heather.

But she wouldn't tell Artichokes until the time came.

At Bay Meadows, Slim and Snapper, co-proprietors of Cold Cream and Susie, decided to race them under the name de course of the Versatile Stable.

Slim pronounced it versa-teal, as in duck, and Snapper versa-til, as in brick.

The only thing versatile about them was that Susie had to have a pasteboard track to run on and Cold Cream couldn't raise a gallop in anything but the mud.

Susie was touched in the wind, but could go five-eighths of a mile at top speed if the air was clear and there wasn't any breeze. She had won a few cat-hops in her time around the cracker-box half-mile tracks of the leaky roof circuit.

Cold Cream was a 5-year-old maiden with a bad knee that looked like a casaba melon.

It was Getaway Week at Bay Meadows and it found Slim and Snapper in debt to the hotel, the feedman, and with shipping money to Santa Anita not even remotely perceptible in the offing.

There was a five-eighths cat-hop in the condition book which Susie, ace headliner of the Versatile Stable, would fit into nicely. But when Slim walked into the tack-room Tuesday morning he found Snapper looking melodramatic.

"The dog bit Susie!" gasped Snapper.

"What are you driving at?" Slim asked, puzzled.

"I'm talking about bad news, Slim."

"Well, bad news travels fast, and that's what we want Susie to do today, isn't it?"

"You don't understand, Slim. Fluff! The stable dog! He bit Susie on her ankle this morning. She'll be on the shelf the rest of the meet."

Just then fate obliged with some quick service, for it started to rain.

Cold Cream had been in the barn for months just waiting for rain.

There was some trouble filling the entries for Wednesday. The prima donna horses of the handicapper division were afraid of getting their feet wet and to fill the card Secretary M. H. Morrison had to hang out a race for non-winners.

Thirty-seven old jalloppies like Cold Cream were just itching to get in this race and when they drew the entries, Cold Cream was among the twelve starters.

Snapper had a little dentist with a mustache all stacked away and primed to win a big bet on the "get-away special." Snapper had been building up for days.

This was it. Cold Cream, thought Snapper.

War Department for more than a year. The bitter feud there between Secretary Harry Woodring and Assistant Secretary Louis Johnson continues with no effort at concealment. Mr. Johnson has made no secret of his belief that he was slated for Mr. Woodring's job and that he wanted it very badly. Mr. Woodring has made no secret that he knew what Mr. Johnson wanted, what Mr. Johnson is doing and saying.

THE President has shown a preference for Mr. Johnson and on War Department matters often has consulted and conferred with him and ignored Mr. Woodring. Mr. Woodring is detested by the "inner circle" but liked by Mr. Garner. All of this—and more—has found its way into print. There has been much speculation about how and when Mr. Woodring would be gotten out and various positions, including the Ambassadorship to Great Britain, have been suggested. However, Mr. Woodring, unimpressed by hints, threats or promises, has stuck right along. The relations between the President and himself admittedly are not cordial while those between him and Mr. Johnson are downright bitter. Even in normal times it is clear that a situation such as this would be more or less demoralizing for the department. Most of the generals, it is said, are strongly for Mr. Woodring, who is personally more popular than Mr. Johnson and a very competent official.

BUT Mr. Johnson, as the Presidential favorite and prospective Secretary, has plenty of friends. The net result has been the formation of cliques among the heads of bureaus and a general feeling of unrest. It has been rather astonishing that Mr. Roosevelt should have let this situation continue so long in a period of peace. That he should do nothing about it in a "limited emergency" with a war raging in Europe and men like Mr. B. M. Baruch pointing out the admitted deficiencies and weaknesses of War Department equipment seems unthinkable.

WITHIN the last few days he has been told by some of his friends that he has no right to delay longer; that the national interests require him to end a state of affairs which is growing worse all the time; that the only thing to do is to get both Mr. Woodring and Mr. Johnson to resign and name two strong men who will command the confidence of the department and have his own. There is reason to expect him to move along this line.

Plan For Winter Comfort Now

By Katharine Fisher

Director, Good Housekeeping Institute

If yours is a house hard to heat, give a thought to your heating system now—before the nippy days of winter arrive. Here are some of the comparatively simple and inexpensive things you might do for a fair and warmer home this winter. Of course, if you plan to install a new system, or you are building a home, complete equipment to provide both winter and summer air conditioning is available.

AUTOMATIC CONTROL. A thermostat with motor-operated damper can probably be installed with your present heating system to make furnace tending easier. This equipment will save many trips up and down the cellar stairs and give you more uniform temperature in your home. The fire won't run away from you so you have to open windows to cool off, nor will it die down and let the temperature drop too low. Of course, you will have to keep coal in the furnace, but think of the many times you will have gone down to open or close the damper or check the fire. A clock can be provided, too, to open up the damper in the morning and warm up the house before you get out of bed.

AUTOMATIC OPERATION. The next step toward more carefree heating is automatic firing of the furnace or boiler. Regardless of the fuel, if your present heating system is in good condition, automatic firing can be done. Stokers for bituminous or anthracite coal, burners for gas or oil, will give reliable service, provided the installation is properly made by a dealer who knows his job. We can't stress this too strongly: time spent in investigating the man you buy from is time well spent. This, in addition to buying the equipment of reliable manufacturers, will give you the greatest satisfaction.

GENERAL MAINTENANCE. Perhaps you already have an automatic heating system. Well, there are still some things to be done. Before the heating season begins, arrange with your dealer to inspect your equipment. He will check the operation of electrical and mechanical parts, the thermostat contacts, the furnace or boiler, and prepare the plant for the heating season. Don't overlook the smoke pipe and the chimney, either. These may need cleaning and repair. It's much simpler to have this work done while the weather is mild than to be forced to have it done when the mercury is hovering around zero.

IMPROVEMENTS IN OPERATION. Have you a balky radiator that results in a cold or uncomfortable room? Perhaps the vent valve needs cleaning. The small openings clog up so that air can't be released and the radiator won't heat. If radiators heat unevenly you'll be interested in vent valves with variable openings. These can be set so that the radiator farthest away heats as fast as the one nearest the boiler. There are special valves for the steam mains in the cellar, too, so that air in them can be vented quickly. This means that radiators will heat faster when the thermostat calls for heat. Still another type of valve is the vacuum type which converts the steam system to a vapor system. Equipped with these, the radiators hold the heat longer because air, once vented, is not allowed to re-enter.

For the hot-water heating system of the gravity type, you may want to consider the installation of a water circulating pump. Water circulation is speeded up so that, here again, radiators heat faster, and the heating system is more responsive to the demands of the room thermostat. Decreasing the variation in room-temperature change means greater comfort. The installation of such a pump may mean the difference between an unsatisfactory heating system and one from which you can derive real comfort.

The gravity warm-air heating system can be reconditioned, too, for more uniform heating. The addition of a blower to your present furnace will mean quick, uniform heating throughout the house. Besides the positive circulation of warm air, the air can be filtered, and humidifying equipment can be added, if desired. These features of air circulation, air filtering, and humidifying can also be added to steam or hot-water heating systems. Equipment and controls can be connected to your existing system so that winter air conditioning is possible in your home.

FALL FEAST FOR YOUR FAMILY

Here's a slick main course dish for one of those crisp fall days when you'd rather be outdoors than milling around over a meal in the kitchen—a big platterful of macaroni with ham and mushroom topping. It's one of those quick-trick recipes that take just a twirl of the can opener and a couple of minutes on the stove to turn out a triumph. To prepare:

MACARONI WITH HAM AND MUSHROOMS

Slice thinly—

- 1 lb. fresh mushrooms
- then sauté until tender in—
- 2 tablespoons butter.

Add—

- 1 cup finely diced boiled ham or tongue
- 1 small onion, scraped or finely diced.

Continue cooking until slightly brown.

Add, heating thoroughly—

- 1 medium (17 oz.) can cooked macaroni in cream sauce with cheese

Salt and pepper to taste.

Serve on platter and garnish with ripe mission olives. (Serves 4.)

SPICY SALAD SERVICE

With this macaroni menu you'll want to serve a big bowlful of crisp salad greens—a quick concoction that will set off the main course dish by contrast with its tart and spicy savor. So take a firm head of iceberg lettuce and cut the whole head into inch square cubes. Toss lightly into a lettuce-lined salad bowl, then glisten the leaves with this tasty tomato ketchup dressing:

ALL-PURPOSE FRENCH DRESSING

Combine—

- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons tomato ketchup
- 2½ teaspoons powdered sugar.

Add alternately, beating well after each addition—

- ¼ cup orange juice
- ¼ cup lemon juice
- ¼ cup salad oil
- 2 tablespoons pure olive oil

LARRUP AND LADY-LIKE

To top off this feast, serve your family dainty, sunny-colored lady fingers or strips of sponge cake crowned with lavish spoonfuls of Uncooked Fruit Whip. Split two lady fingers for each serving and arrange halves on a lace paper doily centered on a dessert plate. Then prepare this fruity flavored frosting from a canful of ready-to-serve strained pears and pineapple. It's cool, quick and colorful:

UNCOOKED FRUIT WHIP

Whip—

- ½ cup whipping cream.
- Combine, then fold into whipped cream—
- ½ cup sugar
- ½ can strained pears and pineapple*
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice.

Serve over lady fingers, or sponge cake cut into strips.

*Strained pears or strained apricots and apple sauce may be substituted, decreasing lemon juice to 1 teaspoon.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

Ladies and Gentlemen: Prepare for spooks, ghosts, haunts, mystics and murder! Sinister seers, mysterious magicians, in a thrill-and-chill adventure of modern witchcraft, will show you things you won't believe even when you see them!

They're in "Miracles for Sale," drama of demonology, crime and magic, coming today to the Grand Theatre. You'll see police talking to a man two hours after he died; a murderer escaping into thin air through a brick wall; mysterious ghost materialization and wonders of stage magic, all woven into one of the most gripping detective stories an author ever conceived.

BRISTOL THEATRE

A score of stars, leading men, heavies, comics and character players make up the exceptional cast of popular names appearing in "Exile Express," announced by the Bristol Theatre for today.

Heading this big cast is Anna Sten, in the role of a beautiful immigrant girl whose dearest ambition is to attain American citizenship, but who is forced to prove at risk of her life her great loyalty to the land of her choice. Falsely accused of complicity in a murder, she is ordered deported with a motley band of exiles, and is thrown into a wild series of adventures.

RITZ THEATRE

James Gleason, who stars in the Republic Higgins Family comedy of that same title—"Should Husbands Work?"—which starts today at the Ritz Theatre, thinks so, but in the film he has a hot time trying to keep a job because of his wife's "helping hand."

"EACH DAWN I DIE"

O'MAHONEY BOOKED TO WRESTLE ABE COLEMAN

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 27.—The second wrestling show of the new indoor season at the Arena, tonight, will bring together Danno O'Mahoney, Irish youngster, and former world's heavyweight champion, opposed to Abe Coleman, sawed-off Hebrew drop-kicker.

It will be a best two fall out of three, 90-minute time limit bout and should be one of the most interesting ever contested at the Stockton street battle-pit.

Danno rose from mediocrity to the heavyweight title with his sensational use of the "Irish Whip," an arm-pulling hold that is the most potent in wrestling annals. He is the only man to defeat Jim Londos in six years.

Coleman, the most traveled of the heavyweights, owes his ability to stay among the top-flight grapplers by his use of his legs. He is credited with being the first grappler to use the drop-kick, made famous by Joe Savoldi, and that weapon, plus his comical antics in the ring, have made him a prime favorite of the fans.

Three newcomers will see their first Trenton action on this card. Mark Halsey, a highly-touted westerner, will face the popular Abe Yonist in the semi-feature; Raoul Lopez, swarthy Spaniard, will tangle with the clever Greek, George Kondylas, and Allan Eustace, a veteran campaigner, will make his debut against the likable Ernie Powers, Canadian lumberjack.

TEXAS CHRISTIAN TO BE WEAKER IN DEFENSE

By Dave Park

(I. N. S. Sports Writer)
DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 27.—(I.N.S.)—The current European fracas was taking a leaf out of the Southwestern football notebook.

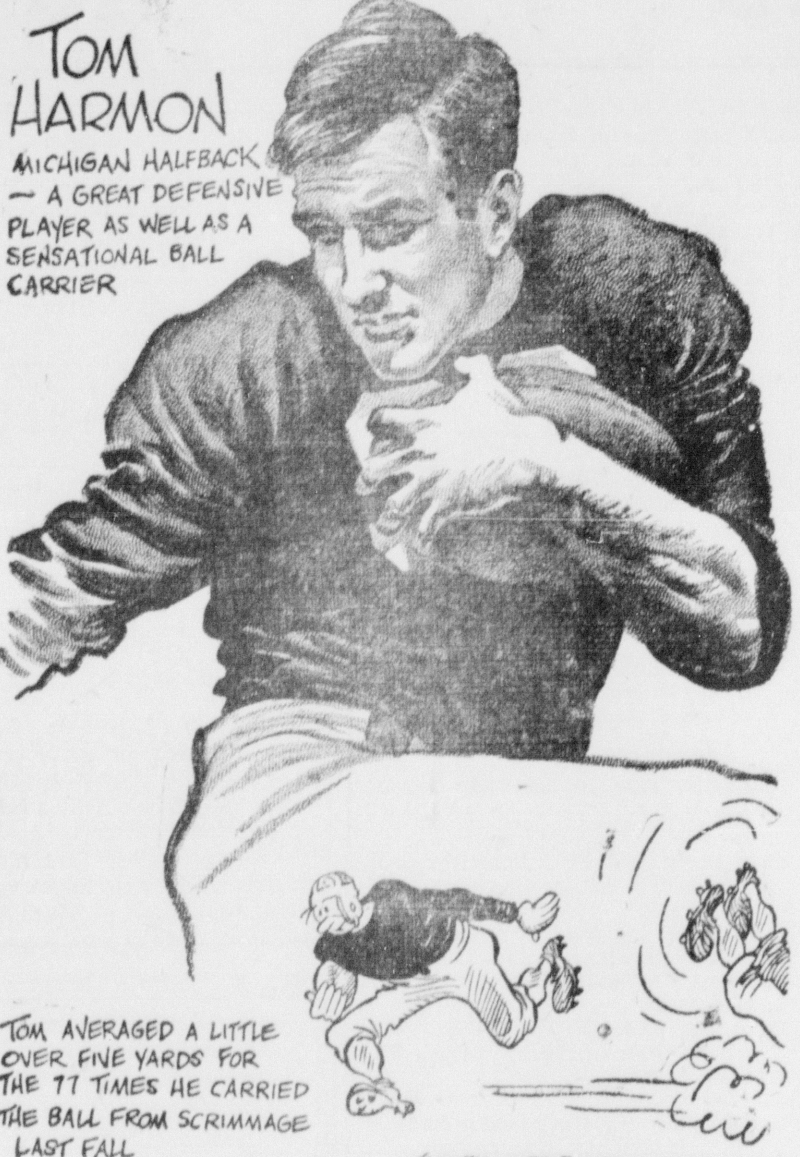

For it's a dead clinch that "aerial dogfights" will continue to be the rule, rather than the exception, in this home of the wide-open game.

Texas Christian's Horned Frogs, whose supporters claim for them last year's national championship, will be weaker on the defense this season but cozy Dutch Meyer makes no bones about stating the team will be more potent than ever on the offense, and virtually every other member of the seven-team Southwest Conference has similar prospects.

There is no stand-out favorite for the title this time. Rice's Owls, dogged by injuries and "Rosehowlitis" in 1938, get much favorable attention, especially since the touchdown twins, Ernie Lain and Ollie Cordill, will be back in action. An equally husky and promising outfit is working out at Texas A. & M. with Coach Homer Norton, who admits to having "the best material in years."

Neither can the Arkansas Razorbacks be overlooked, with a prospect of starting ten lettermen including forward-passing Kay Eakin. T. C. U.

though sadly missing Davey O'Brien and Kl Aldrich among others, is counting on Junior Connie Sparks and sophomore Jack Odle in the backfield to make the fans take notice.

If Kl Aldrich's shoes can be filled—and that's a terrific order for any one man—the Frogs might even be as good as last year, so don't sell them short either.

Southern Methodist, the only team to cause T. C. U. real trouble last year, is more dangerous than ever this time despite the loss of its starting ends. The team will be lighter than the Conference average, but fast as lightning and will take its share of games.

Nobody knows just why Morley Jennings, coach of Baylor, is so optimistic when you consider that the Bears lost Sam Boyd and Billy Patterson.

But that 1938 freshman team, rated best in Baylor's history, may have a lot to do with the cheerfulness at Waco. Baylor seldom gets worse than a third place in the Conference, and good times may be just ahead.

Dana Bible's third year of tenure at the University of Texas promises to be his best so far, although it's generally believed 1940 will be the Steers' year. The 1939 lineup will be almost half sophomores.

celler Hitler's luxurious Condor airplane. His visit carries implications as great as those surrounding his first call on Premier Vyacheslav M. Molotov when the Russo-German pact of non-aggression was signed.

Another Moscow visitor today will be Karl Selzer, Estonian Foreign Minister, who made a one-day trip back to Tallin to consult with the Estonian Cabinet. Soviet Russia is bringing the strongest pressure on its former province, on the ground that Estonian coasts have been used as the secret bases for Polish submarines.

Over their Shish Kobah at the Turkish Embassy today important Soviet and Turkish officials may reach conclusions vital to the fate of nations from Moscow to Ankara.

Foreign Minister Shukra Saracoglu of Turkey has been feted by the highest authorities of the U. S. S. R. for two days, and today he will be host at luncheon to a group which includes not only Russian authorities, but delegates from some of the Balkan nations.

The fact that more stress has been placed on the festive aspects of the Turkish minister's trip probably is due to the sudden decision of Von Ribbentrop to come to Moscow on the invitation of the Soviet government.

But by tomorrow, observers believed, decisions may be reached governing the fate of the Baltic and Balkan States.
